

Tim Murrill Bio

A self-described small business advocate, Tim Murrill is a SBDC Director who is committed to helping business owners succeed by developing quality programs and leading a dynamic and highly-skilled group of business advisors to serve our small businesses in Solano and Napa Counties.

He has spent the last 5 years creating programs to support small businesses and is currently most passionate about the work his team is doing to help our small businesses bounce back from the many challenges the COVID pandemic has brought.

As a former Director of Global Sales for FedEx and former business owner, Tim has developed a unique perspective when it comes to the challenges associated with running a successful small business. Influenced by his years at FedEx and forming, growing and selling a company of his own, he aspires to do everything possible to help small businesses take their business to the next level.
